1st Annual Conference

InterProfessional Care for the 21st Century:
Redefining Education

Thursday, October 23, 2008
7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.
Overview

Jefferson Interprofessional Education Center's FIRST annual FREE conference will unite educators, health and social service professionals, policy makers, researchers, and interested stakeholders in cultivating collaborative approaches towards interprofessional education programs. Participants will examine the range of health and social service professional programs interconnectedness with education and impact on healthcare. Share your expertise, explore collaborative partnerships and learn new skills. Don’t miss this hallmark event at Thomas Jefferson University!

Network At Lunch
This is a unique opportunity to meet with colleagues from education and healthcare in a relaxed and comfortable atmosphere.

Poster Session / Connections Event
This session features work from faculty and students that highlights interprofessional educational activities and patient-centered learning models.

Who Should Attend?
Course Directors, Educators, Physicians, Nurses, Pharmacists, Physical Therapists, Occupational Therapists, Social Service Professionals and other interested stakeholders.

Learning Objectives:
At the end of the conference, participants will be able to:
1. Identify interprofessional education benefits, teaching strategies and evaluation methods.
2. Comprehend the impact of interprofessional teams on health care delivery and outcomes.
3. Define the roles of individual professionals as part of the interprofessional team by discussion of successful interprofessional education applications in practice.
4. Incorporate interprofessional education into curricula.
5. Assess individual practices in light of the information and discussion during the conference and identify specific strategies to implement as part of a continuing improvement process for your practices.
